St. Lucie County Fire District Honor Guard holds First Annual Golf Tournament

Tournament raises money to help honor guard with expenses

St. Lucie County, FL – A summer shower did not dampen the spirits or the play at the recent St. Lucie County Fire District Honor Guard Golf Tournament. The First Annual Golf tournament was held Saturday, August 7 at the St. James Golf Club, Port St. Lucie.

Twenty teams (80 individuals) competed for prizes and trophies, including competition for closest to the pin and longest drive. Players could also win door prizes at the event.

“For the first event, this was an excellent fundraiser that will help offset the cost of the Honor Guard,” explained Ron Parrish, St. Lucie County Fire Chief.

The Tournament raised money for the Honor Guard to pay for training, uniforms, equipment and expenses when traveling to events and competitions.

The Honor Guard was recently reestablished by the Fire District and has 14 members.
